Inspired to GO

As part of the Discipleship Training School (DTS), we attended a week long event about missions called a GO Conference. We drove through the Rocky Mountains to a retreat center in Alberta. During the week we listened to YWAM missionaries talk about their experiences with God. Different workshops were held on various topics like learning to use your passions in missions and discussing women's experiences in missions. One afternoon we had a cultural fair with tables set up to talk about different countries/people groups from around the world such as Kyrgastan, Rawanda and Pakistan. A fellow YWAM-er and I led a table to talk about Thailand.

The YWAM-ers and DTS students that attended the conference.

We also prayed for the nations of the world, and major issues such as human trafficking. During this conference a few of our students felt God calling them into full-time missions, which was exciting for us, as staff, to hear. I was reminded of my love for other cultures and my desire to help people experience God in a transformational way. I am so glad I could be a part of this encouraging and empowering event.

New Memories

During my DTS I attended this conference so I was excited to see how God would speak this time. It was a joy to reconnect with YWAM staff that I have met at various events over the last year, such as the Rendez-vous. During the conference the main speakers reminded me to dream big and that God can use the strengths and passions I already posses to show God's love to people. One afternoon, a fellow YWAM-er and I taught about Thailand during a cultural fair which was a life giving experience. I loved seeing people grasp God's heart for the nations of the world. This week was full of encounters with God as I worshiped, and prayed in community. I want to remember these precious moments with God through out the rest of my life.

Chloe and I teaching about Thailand
